Why Do You Hate Safety?

It all seems so exhausting. If someone has very little health and safety knowledge or experience, it's easy to come to the conclusion that if your workers haven't gotten hurt yet, why do you need to spend all of this time and energy (and money) into a safety program?

Stupid Doesn't Work Here Anymore

Manager: "Hi HR, I fired Jane today. She had a terrible attitude, was making stupid mistakes and performed only half of her job."

There are so many things wrong with this scenario and yet, it happens all the time.

Leadership in Health and Safety

Leadership refers to the power of influence that each of us can exercise. In this sense, it differs from the concept of management which is the sole responsibility of managers and supervisors. Health and safety at work requires good management, but strong leaders are also essential.

Wellness Talk: Standing Desks - They are Not the Answer

This new standing desk fad has created such a stir. Reports contradict each other regarding the pros of ditching the chair and using a standing desk but quite frankly, the concern should be for anyone expected to hold the same posture for long periods of time, sitting or standing.

Tech Talk: Lifecycle of Software Development

Each day we use software to make our lives easier. From the Operating System on our phones and the computers in our cars to the computers and machines at our job sites. Although we always have suggestions to better the software we use to make something easier for us, we don't always fully understand what it requires to get these suggestions into reality.
